ONLINE CLASSROOM

Example 2 Factor by grouping each of the following.

(a) $3x^3 - 2x + 12x - 8$

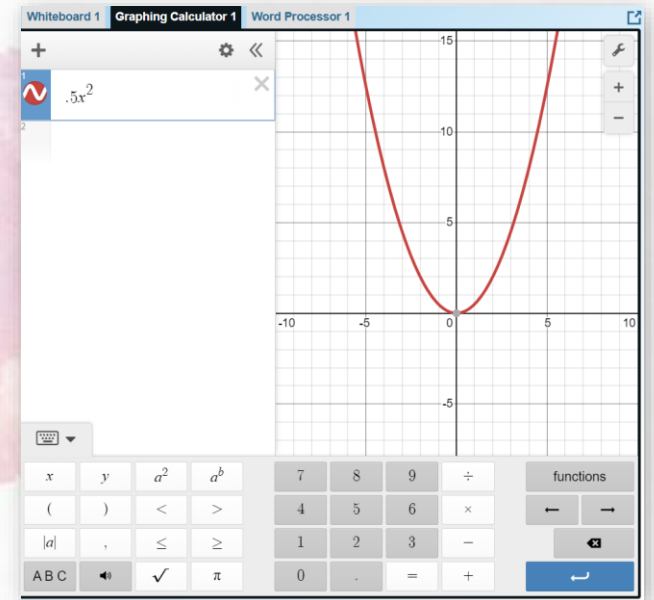

(b) $x^5 + x - 2x^4 - 2$ ←

(c) $x^5 - 3x^3 - 2x^2 + 6$

Handwritten work on the whiteboard:

$$x^5 + x - 2x^4 - 2$$
$$(x^5 + x) - (2x^4 + 2)$$
$$x^5 + x - 2x^4 - 2 = x(x^4 + 1) - 2(x^4 + 1)$$
$$x^5 + x - 2x^4 - 2 = (x^4 + 1)(x - 2)$$

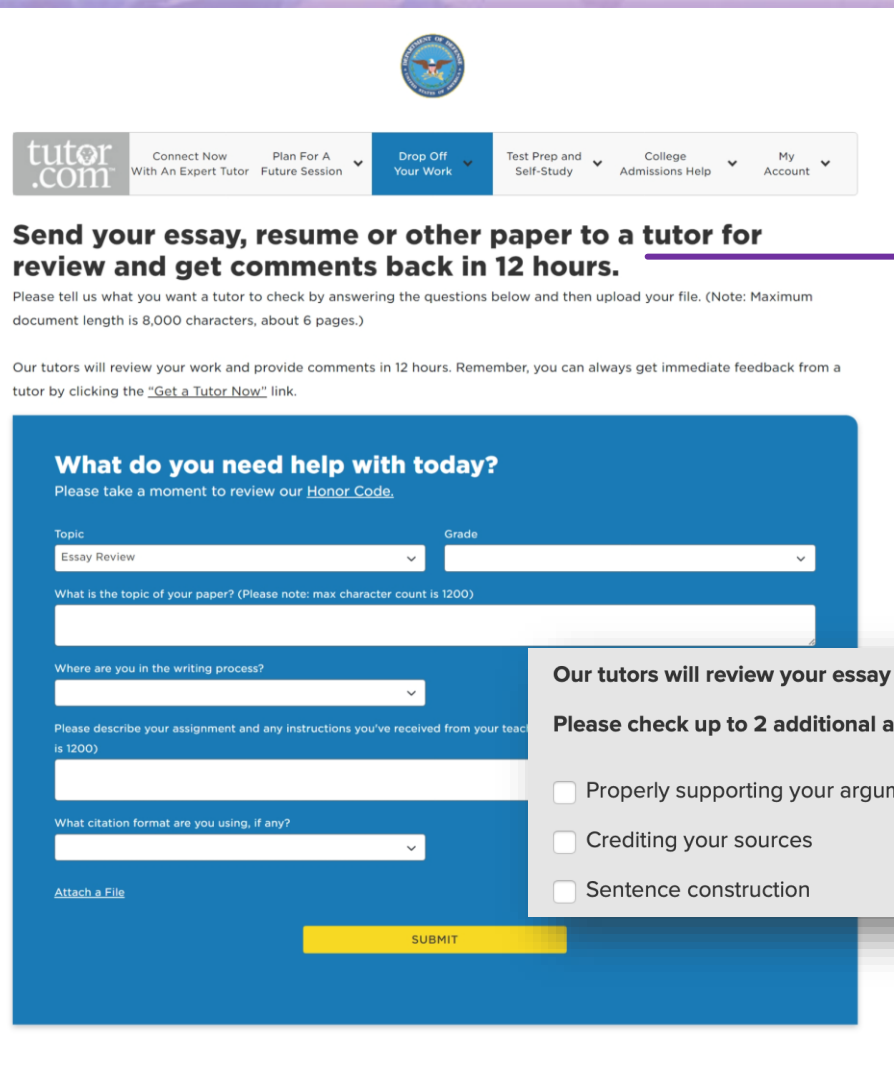

On the right, there's a chat window with 2 participants. A message from user 'S' says: "Good afternoon! Can you help me with factoring trinomials?" at 1:13:08. A response from user 'T' says: "I'd be happy to help with that! Can you put the problem up on the whiteboard so we can take a look together?" at 1:13:50. The bottom status bar shows a play button, a timer at 1:23:20, and a 'LIVE' indicator.

The screenshot shows a word processor interface with a text document. The text discusses the practical benefits of space travel and the potential for finding resources in space. The text is as follows:

However, the truth of the matter is that the practical benefits of space travel far outweigh the costs. For example, many medicines and drugs have been created and tested in the zero-gravity of space. One such test done aboard the International Space Station was conducted to try a new form of cancer treatment delivery, an experiment that provided, "better drug delivery and new medical treatments for solid tumors and resistant infections" ("Cancer Treatment Delivery"). Developments such as this can provide direct help for doctors on Earth. NASA's space program provides new possibilities for experimentation. Another benefit from space travel lies in the excess of natural resources to be found in space. The cosmos are abundant in natural resources. each planet boasts its own multitude of minerals and chemicals just like the earth. Gold, iron, diamond, all such materials can be found throughout the universe on anything from distant planets, to drifting asteroids. Not only can minerals rare on earth be found plentiful on other planets, but some even contain minerals completely unknown to us, with their own properties and potential uses yet to be discovered. Many nations and companies are realizing the potential for this endeavour as well, with companies like Planetary Resources jumping on the gold-rush early. Planetary Resources, a newly founded asteroid mining company, states in their mission plan that, "Asteroids are filled with precious resources, everything from water to platinum. Harnessing valuable minerals from a practically infinite source will provide stability on Earth, increase humanity's prosperity, and help establish and maintain human presence in space." With major business and aerospace companies looking into outer planet resources, such as the potential of

12 - HOUR DROP - OFF WRITING REVIEW

The screenshot shows the Tutor.com website interface. At the top, there's a navigation bar with the Tutor.com logo and several menu items: 'Connect Now With An Expert Tutor', 'Plan For A Future Session', 'Drop Off Your Work' (highlighted), 'Test Prep and Self-Study', 'College Admissions Help', and 'My Account'. Below the navigation bar, a heading reads 'Send your essay, resume or other paper to a tutor for review and get comments back in 12 hours.' followed by a note about the maximum document length. A paragraph states that tutors will review work and provide comments in 12 hours, with a link to 'Get a Tutor Now'. The main form area is titled 'What do you need help with today?' and includes a link to the 'Honor Code'. It has dropdown menus for 'Topic' (set to 'Essay Review') and 'Grade'. A text box asks for the topic of the paper, with a character count note. Another dropdown asks 'Where are you in the writing process?'. A text box for assignment details is followed by a citation format dropdown. A yellow 'SUBMIT' button is at the bottom. To the right of the form, a grey box contains additional review options.

Very few writers have the power to immediately catch the attention of their readers and make them feel as passionate as he himself. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. is one of those few writers. In "Letter from Birmingham Jail" he catches the reader's attention from the start and keeps them feeling motivated to make a change. Throughout King's letter, he convinces others of the validation and importance of his civil disobedience by intelligently using strong means of persuasion. King did not just write to change the perspective of the clergymen that he was replying to. He also wrote to change the perspective of those that believe not taking a stand for what is right is acceptable. King creates a way for readers to understand his perspective using pathos. This strategy was very effective in his letter. King writes, "Perhaps it is easy for those who have never felt the stinging darts of segregation to say, "Wait." But when you have seen vicious mobs lynch your mothers and fathers at will and drown your sisters and brothers at whim; when you have seen hate-filled policemen curse, kick, and even kill your black brothers and sisters..." (803). He puts at the heartstrings and emotions of those with moms, dads, brothers, sister, sons, and daughters. He gives the readers a better understanding of the pain that the African American community is no longer bear which creates an effective argument for his civil disobedience. Most importantly, he writes this passion that flows out of the pages and gives the reader the realization that change is needed now.

Not only does King effectively use pathos, he also uses ethos and rhetorical questions to convince his readers. He uses well known authority figures such as Jesus, the apostle Paul, Abraham Lincoln, and Thomas Jefferson. He uses on to explain how all the people above were extremist for what they believed in. He provides each of these figures and provides evidence that

1 Maya "him or herself"

2 Maya Be careful to maintain past tense throughout, since King wrote in the past, not the present. I did to highlight all the words to change to past tense. But you'd want to do your own double-check to make sure I didn't miss any before you turn your paper in.

3 Maya Generally, you should not end a sentence with a preposition. It sounds a little strange to us the correct way because we're not used to hearing it. Also, because "employment" refers to people, you should use "where" rather than "that" ... to whom he was replying."

4 Maya who

5 Maya Which comes after a comma, there is a good reason for requiring the use of that or which, which explains this: <https://www.writingtopical.com/online-editorial/wh-which/>

6 Maya Since you're writing in past tense, you might want to change this to "change was needed immediately," or something similar.

7 Maya This would read smoother if you change "his" to "he"

8 Maya Good point

9 Maya Get a prepositional phrase off with a comma. Here is a reference about comma usage that you may find helpful: <https://owl.purdue.edu/owl/academic/line/commas/commas.html>

10 Maya Wordiness: Editing a sentence down to fewer, more powerful words can help your sentence not only be more powerful, but also be easier to understand. To begin with, I would eliminate the prepositional phrase and work that into another part of the sentence. Remember, the sentence so the most important point is at the beginning. For example, "King actively engaged the reader and built the power of his letter with his questions."

11 Maya Capitalize

12 Maya - which

Below the question, the same options are repeated: a. clean (marked with a blue X), b. messy (circled in blue), and c. green (marked with a blue X). To the right of these options are two blue checkmarks and a blue smiley face. At the bottom of the whiteboard, the text "www.k5learning.com", "© K5 Learning 2019", and "32" are visible.

The "Streams" section on the right shows a waveform of audio. Below the waveform, there are two participants: "S John M (Tutor)" and "M Maria".

The "Public Chat" section at the bottom right shows a list of messages from "John M (Tutor)": "Great Job!", "Great Job!", "Great Job!", "Great Job!", and "Great Job!". The chat is timestamped "0:32:04". At the bottom of the chat, it says "100% (1)".

Green confetti is scattered across the entire interface, indicating a celebration of student success.

Passage II

A sphere falling through a fluid experiences a decreasing acceleration until reaching a final, constant velocity. This terminal velocity, V_t , of the sphere depends on the sphere's radius, R ; the sphere's density, ρ_s ; the fluid's density, ρ_f ; and the fluid's viscosity, μ .

The table below gives V_t in meters/second (m/s), for a sphere of uniform density falling through a fluid for various combinations of R , in meters (m); ρ_s in kilograms/meter³ (kg/m³); and ρ_f in kilograms/meter³ (kg/m³). In each experiment, the viscosity of the fluid, μ , is held constant.

Combination	R (m)	ρ_f (kg/m ³)	ρ_s (kg/m ³)	V_t (m/s)
1	0.100	0.200	1.200	2.177
2	0.200	0.200	1.200	8.711

College Tracker
College Research Tracker
Your College Research Tracker helps you manage your college research and schools of interest.
To add a school of interest to your tracker, click the "Add School" button and begin typing in the name of a college or university (common acronyms are OK as well). If the school you are looking for is not coming up in the list, double-check your spelling of the school name. Once the school you are looking for has popped up in the dropdown list, select the school name and it will be added to your tracker along with selected data about the school.
Keep your College Research Tracker updated with colleges you are interested in so that you can begin narrowing your list by the time senior year approaches.
